In one sentence, Froebel, father of the kindergarten, expressed the essence of early-childhood education. Children are not born knowing the difference between red and green, sweet and sour, rough and smooth, cold and hot, or any number of physical sensations. The natural world is the infant's and ...

The zone of proximal development, often abbreviated as ZPD, is the difference between what a learner can do without help, and what they can't do. The concept was introduced, but not fully developed, by psychologist Lev Vygotsky (1896-1934) during the last ten years of his life. Vygotsky stated that a child follows an adult's example and gradually develops the ability to do certain tasks ...

Play is a range of voluntary, intrinsically motivated activities done for recreational pleasure and enjoyment. Play is commonly associated with children and juvenile-level activities, but play occurs at any life stage, and among other higher-functioning animals as well, most notably mammals.. Many prominent researchers in the field of psychology, including Melanie Klein, Jean Piaget, William ...

A reader sent me a beautiful description of the tranquility he finds walking in and communing with nature. It seems my friend has become a forest dweller in the Hindu tradition! I think that if we don't find peace in this way, we probably won't find it anywhere, for many seers and sages have found something vastly preferable in nature and solitude.

Table 1: The four levels/modes of processing. Figures 3, 4, and 5 show how within the processing model, cognition depends upon context. The effectiveness of the contribution of processing activities at each of these levels / modes, depends on the cognitive requirements posed by the specific context.
